

Brennon Dowrick

There are three parts that can be very effective in helping an individual and their team reach the results they are striving for.

Building Success on Strong Foundations.

This means that the person needs to get back to brilliant basics during their day to day workings in their financial positions. Once this is consistently achieved then you have a strong base to spring board off towards results. It will take more time to get the foundations of your business built perfectly but in the long run it will in fact save you time and allow you to achieve even greater results you thought were possible. Having a strong foundation will give you the confidence to be innovative and try new things but still giving you that strong platform your business needs to survive and perform consistently.

The Extra 15 Minutes.

This can be your secret weapon in achieving your yearly goals. By allocating 15 minutes a day towards a task you may not enjoy but on one which can help you to better yourself and get you to that goal you have set , then this will help you achieve results you could only dream were possible .

Remember 15 minutes a day adds up to another seventy hours of time a year. This is fantastic as long as it is time well spent. Ask yourself, "what is my extra 15 minutes going to be"?

Team Work as an Individual.

You will always have tasks that you perform as an individual. However you will perform far more productively as a team player. Share ideas, great practices and things that can help your colleagues. By doing this not only does your team perform better and grow but your own performance will be far better as well. Surrounding yourself with a talented team can be a great asset. If you can lead by example and bring out your teams determination then you will have a truly unbeatable team.

Everything I have spoken about in my Keynote presentation you already know. However what I have done is remind you of what needs to be done in a memorable way. Always have that self believe, be innovative and deal with change in a possible way.